

MOKENA ROAD BOOSTERS SEE GOV.

Fight to Get Wolf Road
Through on Route 51
Getting Real Hot Now

Another large attendance at the Mokena Development Association meeting Monday evening, attested to the continued interest and determined effort of the rapidly growing organization, which includes in its membership many from all parts of Frankfort and adjoining townships and from Cook county neighborhoods.

Among those present and who made brief addresses were Hon. N. Welter of Homer township and a member of the county board and Hon. John Jenco our state representative from this district.

Mr. Jenco expressed his interest in the people and affairs with great fairness, only asking his constituents to be fair with him and with honest conviction to "show him the way"—he created a very favorable impression.

Chairman Ona McGovney reported the progress of the committee appointed at the last meeting to consider the drafting of a petition for presentation to the County board regarding the subject of a proposed bond issue.

A short but interesting talk was made by L. G. Bruder who also presented a file of important letters and communications which he had received. These were read by the clerk and as they were from leading Associations and agencies in Cook and Will Counties and all expressive of good will and assurance of assistance in our efforts to get the Wolf Road established. They were received with enthusiasm and Mr. Bruder was complimented for his untiring endeavors. A number of others spoke briefly but pointedly.

A motion was made by Mr. Bruder that a committee consisting of Peter Michelson, Don C. Hall and Chas. Erickson should be appointed to go to Springfield and that the organization should defray the expenses. The motion was carried without a dissenting vote, and it was so ordered. The cracking of bills in collector E. Cooper's hat abundantly cared for the financial part of the program proving conclusively that "where there is a will there is a way" with this organization.

As an answer to a request for specific instructions for the committee, D. C. Hall asked the Sec. to read the Association's original resolutions as adapted. This done a rousing reendorsement and a unanimous declaration of the Association's firm stand was given on a motion by N. F. Heiman.

A motion was made by Mr. Bruder that 3 copies of the News-Bulletin should be sent to certain departments, reporting the meetings, and that they be paid for by the Association. On the advice of Editor Semmler who was present that the papers were already being sent out, the subject of a general publicity department and program was discussed which will again be taken up and a definite plan arranged at a future meeting. The subject of a mass meeting was brought up, and chairman McGovney was delegated to look up the proposition and to make such arrangements as could be made to promote a big meeting of citizens from Will and adjoining counties interested in hard road development.

This "harmonious gathering" adjourned on motion to reassemble Monday evening, Feb. 21.

At this meeting the delegation which was sent to Springfield and had an audience with the Governor will submit a full and comprehensive written report setting forth in detail the result of their talk with the Governor.

St. John's Cemetery
Plan at Mokena
Draws Fire

The St. John Cemetery Association have been holding a number of meetings relative to adopting a new constitution and the point relating as to whether the cemetery shall be private or community cemetery has drawn a sharp fire.

The following communication has been given to the News-Bulletin for publication on this matter:

"We kindly appeal to the members of St. John's Church of Mokena by all means if possible make arrangements to attend the postponed meeting Monday February 21 at 1 p. m."

"Some very important articles in adopting the new constitution and by laws in connection with the new and old cemetery are to be accepted or rejected at this meeting."

"At this day and age we surely do not wish to make this cemetery an exclusive one for St. John's church members only. We are taught to be broad and liberal minded in our views and actions toward our fellowman."

"Therefore, we hope and pray that our congregation has enough broad and liberal minded members to reject any rule or article making the cemetery an exclusive one."

"Let us make it a community cemetery and live up to the teachings of brotherly love and Christian fellowship."

"Make St. John's church and cemetery a benefit to all the people of this vicinity and not talk community spirit only when we want our money to glorify our selfish motives."

Frankfort Township Oil Bubble
Bursts When Land Owners and Promoters Disagree

And the bubble burst! That is what has happened to the oil and gas well boom in Frankfort township. Last week a meeting was held at Frankfort at which the oil promoters said to have been from Chicago and Pittsburgh met a number of land owners and made a proposition relative to leasing land in Frankfort township for oil and gas prospecting purposes and arranged for another meeting held at the Frankfort hall Wednesday afternoon of this week at which time the land owners were to sign up the leases.

After the meeting was called the land owners and promoters could not come to an agreement over certain lease matters and the whole proposition was then dropped and the oil bubble burst. So again visions of Frankfort township being an oil field vanish.

A Communication

Editor The News-Bulletin:

In your issue of last week you had a notice that the Mokena vehicle licenses are due and must be paid by March 1st. Now I want to raise a question: I would like to be shown how this vehicle ordinance can be made to apply to only a certain group of auto owners while some are allowed to get out of it and pay no vehicle license at all.

Last year there were instances where certain parties did not take out a vehicle license and were not called in for violation of the ordinance. If this law is good for some it should apply to all or else it has no reason for existence.

Washingtoniana, 1927

WASHINGTON CROSSING THE DELAWARE
Painting by Emanuel Leutze

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE whole history of the American Revolution revolves around one man—George Washington.

So it was eminently fitting that the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of that tremendous event in the history of the world should find the nation's interest centered again on that man. What were the outstanding events in the year 1926, the anniversary of the high point in the American war for independence? Certainly it was not the sesquicentennial celebration in the city where the Declaration of Independence was signed, for that celebration was a dismal failure. Undoubtedly the outstanding events were those which put upon the lips of all Americans once more the name of Washington and caused them to take part in a discussion, which has not yet ended, as to the "real Washington."

So 1926 will go down in history, not only as the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, but also as the year in which an immense store of information was added to the available Washingtoniana and which promises well for further accession to that national heritage in 1927. As the result of the events of 1926, we come to another celebration of Washington's birthday with our knowledge of him enriched and, despite—or perhaps, because of—all the controversy that has raged over what was or was not the "real Washington," a better appreciation of just how much we owe to the man we call "The Father of His Country."

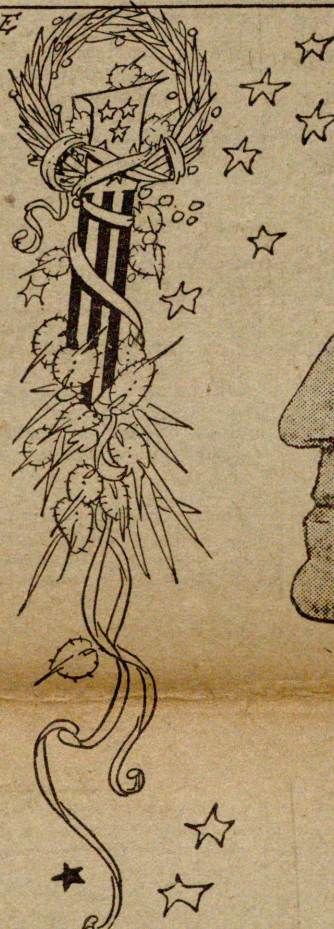

An arrangement of the 1926 Washingtoniana items in chronological order rather than attempting to consider them on the basis of relative importance shows the curious fact that this man, dead these 127 years, started off the year as a newspaper "headliner." This came about when Rupert Hughes, the novelist, in January gave an address before the Sons of the American Revolution in the national capital and not only aroused the ire of that organization, but stirred up a nation-wide controversy, when he told the truth about Washington, as he saw the truth. Although it turned out later that the speaker was misquoted, even at that some of his statements were too strong for some persons to accept without protest. So the tempest in a teapot, which the affair seemed to be, took on greater proportions as Hughes was successively attacked and defended and others took a hand in the row.

The net result was that, paradoxical as it may sound, George Washington became a "national figure" once more, at least so far as the newspapers were concerned and one New York daily pointed out that Washington's birthday was celebrated as never before because of Hughes' effort to represent Washington "as a man and not a statue."

One event of considerable significance connected with the celebration of Washington's birthday was the "rediscovery" of what has been termed the last portrait made of Washington, which is reproduced with this article. The story of this portrait is a romantic one. In 1793 a twenty-three-year-old Frenchman named Charles Balthazar Julien Fevret de St. Memin came to America from the city of Dijon and settled in Philadelphia. There he invented what he called a "physiognomance and pantograph" with which he was enabled to outline a human head on paper with mathematical exactness, reducing or enlarging it to any size for reproduction on a copper plate. The original was finished on crayon and the copper in mezzotint.

In 1798 Washington went to Philadelphia and while there he sat for the Frenchman for what is said to have been his last portrait. There is authentic record of the fact that St. Memin loaned the original pantographic portrait to Gilbert Stuart, the most famous of all painters of Washington. St. Memin never recovered the portrait from Stuart, for some unknown reason, and Stuart gave it to J. Carson Brevoort of Brooklyn, N. Y. Brevoort, it seems, lent some money to Rev. J. D. Phillips, an Episcopal minister of Brooklyn, taking as security the pastor's library. In some way the portrait came into Phillips' possession and he passed it on to a nephew, J. S. Phillips, who, probably little realizing its value, gave it to the wife of his son, George W. F. Phillips.

In 1886 the Phillips family removed from Brooklyn to Riverside, Ill., and George Phillips went into the fuel business in Lombard, Ill. A few years later an aunt from Brooklyn came to visit them and spoke of the St. Memin portrait. Some time after this McClure's Magazine contained a story about the St. Memin portrait of Washington and made the statement that the original had been lost. Whereupon the sons of George W. F. Phillips, remembering their aunt's statement that a St. Memin portrait was owned in their family, began searching for it in the attic of their home and found the precious pantograph. Its authenticity was established by officials of the Chicago Historical society. That was a number of years ago, but so far as is known the portrait was never reproduced in print until it appeared in a Chicago newspaper upon the occasion of Washington's birthday, 1926.

Although the anniversary of a number of Revolutionary events during the year 1926 served to bring about mention of Washington's name from time to time, it was not until September that the controversy which arose from Hughes' speech was revived. This came about with the publication of two books—"George Washington—The Image and the Man," by W. E. Woodward (Bonni and Live-right, N. Y.) and "George Washington—The Human Being and the Hero, 1732-1799," by Rupert Hughes (William Morrow & Co., N. Y.). While Hughes' biography dealt with only the first thirty years of Washington's life, Woodward's covered his whole life from 1732 to 1799. The aim of both was to reveal the "real Washington," but by widely different methods. Hughes, covering less than half of Washington's life, backed up his statements with documentary authority, his effort being, as he stated, to "let Washington tell his own story as fully as possible in his own words." Woodward's book was a study not only of Washington, but more broadly of the era in which Washington lived, and it was more of a personal interpretation of the man and his time than the other. He interpreted Washington more as a business man than in any other role and asserted that Washington is not really the least understood of our great men, but the best understood, because "he was the American common denominator, the average man deified and raised to the nth power. . . . Here we see the typical captain of industry attitude."

The effect of these two books, both attempting to substitute the living, breathing Washington for the marble statue Washington, was to revive interest in the whole subject and whatever the verdict of critics on both volumes may be, it is perhaps not too much to say that the publication of the Woodward and the Hughes biographies may well be regarded as among the outstanding events in relation to the Washingtoniana of 1926.

If there is one which may challenge that claim it is the celebration which took place in Trenton, N. J., last December when the anniversary of the battle of Trenton was observed. With President and Mrs. Coolidge and thirteen governors, the present executives of the original colonies, as their guests, the citizens of the New Jersey capital staged a series of mass meetings, parades and special church services in keeping with the importance of the winter night a hundred and fifty years ago when Washington and his continentals made their famous crossing of the Delaware to defeat the Hessians and to present to the struggling young Republic the finest Christmas gift that it could possibly desire—a victory at an hour when the hope for the cause of independence seemed dim.

Whatever the new school of historians may eventually accomplish in showing that Washington was not the demigod that he has so often been painted, but that he was a human being with human frailties—that is to say, however much they may take away from some of us our belief that he was a paragon of all the virtues—it is doubtful if they will ever be able even if they desire it, to dim the glory of Washington, the military leader. And in all of his record there is no more brilliant achievement than that which celebrated at Trenton in December or that other victory in the same campaign, the battle of Princeton, which was appropriately observed on January 3 of this year.

Of this campaign Cyrus Townsend Brady has written "There are three things which determine the relative values of military enterprises—the idea, the method and the result. From these points of view, Washington's Trenton and Princeton campaign ranks among the most brilliant in history, and its conception and the manner of its prosecution stamp him as a soldier of the first order. The importance of the end aimed at, and attained in large measure, can hardly be overstated. Although neither of the engagements which took place in carrying out the great idea of it rose to the dignity of a battle, but must rather be classed as heavy skirmishes, I regard it as one of those decisive operations which are turning points in history. Had the results been other than they were, the whole course of the world would have been altered. In spite of the apparent insignificance of the operations, the incidents of the campaign, when the material with which it was worked out is considered, are as fraught with interest, as full of value to the soldier, and evidence as much greatness in the leader, as if Washington had held under his command a hundred thousand men, and the little combats had been as great and as sanguinary as the gigantic battles of larger wars and later days. It is not numbers, but strategy, tactics, personal courage, and things achieved, by which we judge the soldier."

"In these operations, which certainly represented the culminating period of his career, Washington displayed a dash and daring like that of Napoleon in his early Italian campaigns, an inflexible capacity of resistance and recuperation which suggests the great Frederick in his days of adversity, and a determined, dogged, not-to-be-denied persistence which calls to mind the indomitable Grant. The fate of the Revolution was determined right then and there. More than at any other given period of that great conflict, the cause of human liberty hung in the trembling balance on that wild December night."

If Kidneys Act Bad Take Salts

Says Backache Often Means You Have Not Been Drinking Enough Water

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean that you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of soft water.

President of Union No. 62 Quickly Restored to Health

Nervous Indigestion, Loss of Sleep and Run-down Condition, Causes Well-known Chicago Man Much Suffering. Says Tanlac Rescued Him

M. B. Philip, well-to-do property owner, perhaps better known as President of Carpenters Union No. 62, living at 6915 Stewart Avenue, Chicago, says: "When I began taking Tanlac I was always tired, and suffering from loss of sleep. My stomach was so upset that I couldn't eat without suffering from indigestion."

"I followed the advice of a friend and began taking Tanlac. It lived up to its reputation and fulfilled all promises. Quickly my old strength returned. I began to have a great appetite and every night I sleep soundly. Tanlac certainly put me on my feet, and gave me better health and at every opportunity I recommend it to friends and members of my union."

Tanlac usually banishes pain, conquers ailments and builds up strength. It relieves the system of poison caused by constipation and sluggish liver. It is Nature's own remedy made from roots, barks and herbs according to the Tanlac formula.

CHRIS. STEINHAGEN Prop

The Sovereign
State of Illinois

A condition is apparent in the State which, while it obtains in too great a measure in other Commonwealths, is intensified to the last degree in Illinois.

The wily politician, of which there are a number of past masters, and those whom the politicians permit to wear the "robes of dignity" clothed with the badge of official authority, seem to command the situation, and the prevailing idea among the "rank and file" of those outside the "charmed circle", is, that these self sufficient demigods, who have taken to themselves, all "those wonderful qualities of pulchritude which good men love", and who dwell in the Palaces of Political Power, must be approached with fear and trembling, by the "sovereign people" as they humbly beg for a few "crumbs" from the tables of rich political feasting.

This deplorable situation is becoming a real menace to the future growth, prosperity and prestige of the State.

The recent election, of a United States Senator, is a striking example of the absolute lack of aggressive initiative on the part of the free electorate of Illinois, with their watchful waiting and meek submission to the whims of the arrogant ensemble who sit upon the thrones of the Nation's Capitol, where even our State's illustrious contribution to the Executive Department sits and sits.

"Swaps" for "Saps" might be used as an expression descriptive of the situation; a "swap" of votes for a "sap" of human rights, and then with scarce enough moisture in the substance to touch the parched lips of urgent need.

With blind submission the people go on and on, bearing upon their weary shoulders this burden of purveyors of unfulfilled promises, increasing their stipend, intrenching them more firmly in their exalted positions, fearful of even suggesting a means or method for prying them loose from their treacherous hold upon the blood and sinew of our struggling activities, stagnating the passage of the rich, red blood of our possible freedom and progress.

Even the inhabitants of our great metropolis, where is assembled a populace, fairly representative, in character and capable qualities, of the state in general, have often found it necessary to bow down before the "shrine" of the most grave and reverend signors, to crook the pregnant knee that favor might follow fawning.

It is all wrong and unless the people arise in their might and right, and fear, with due respect for law, order and public decency, for the sanctity of our governmental functions and official dignity, and boldly demand not seditious, but demand the execution of the peoples will, the return to us of our publicly purloined birthright, and the rendering of that honest, conscientious service that the people should reasonably expect from the servants whom they have selected to occupy the positions they have created and established for carrying on the state's business in accordance with the will of her Masters; unless there is a return to our heritage of independence, unless we break the shackles that we have allowed the political purchasers of potential power to weld so firmly upon our yielding limbs, we can never hope to come into our own, or to regain the sovereignty of our people or a right to the title.

THE SOVEREIGN STATE OF ILL.

speakers seldom, if ever, assembled on one program. ## R. I. to Spend Millions This Year On Improvements

Nearly twenty-seven million dollars will be expended by the Rock Island Lines in improving their property during 1927, under plans contained in that railroad's budget for the year, which has just been made public from the general offices of the company in Chicago. The budget for improvements, addition, and betterments surpasses any like program of the Rock Island since the war period, and follows on the heels of one of the most prosperous years in the history of the railroad.

The program includes the expenditure of approximately twelve million dollars for new equipment, including locomotives, and freight and passenger cars. More than one million dollars will be expended in double-track work, completing a stretch of 150 miles between Kansas City and Herrington, Kansas. New track work also includes three miles of second main track west of Hutchinon, Kansas.

The program also includes new yards at Joliet and Peoria, Ill., at Newton, Iowa, Armourdale and Herrington, Kansas, and Sayre and Shawnee, Okla. Improvements in the shops, roundhouses, and adjacent property, also will be made at Chicago, Silvis, Peoria, Valley Jct., Council Bluffs, Trenton, Cedar Rapids, Herrington, Dalhart, Amarillo, with new water-treating plants at Armourdale and Marion, Kansas, and Shawnee, Okla.

The new equipment includes 35 locomotives, 73 steel cars for passenger train service, including forty suburban cars for use in Chicago territory, and five new diners. An allotment of the engines and diners will be used in the Golden State Limited California service, and the steel passenger cars in other fast trains. The new freight cars total 2500, of various classes, of which 1000 will be box cars.

In addition to the improvements in track, shops, equipment, etc., more than $800,000 will be expended in new ballasting on main line tracks.

A total of 50,000 tons of new rail are included in this year's program, at a cost of approximately three million dollars. Much of the rail to be laid will be 100 pounds to the yard. A further expenditure of approximately one and one-half million dollars will be made in installation of crossing safety signals, involving practically all divisions of the railroad.

Additional block signals, yard tracks and sidings for industries, and improvements in passenger stations at various points, as well as new section houses, also are in-

Vagabond King Work of Art

"The Vagabond King," at the Great Northern, is an operetta which is a work of art—a triumph of musical skill and the perfect blending of fine singers, a stirring plot, and scenery in the best imaginative mood of James Reynolds.

Presented by Russell Janney, who gave us melodious "Marjolaine" some years back, and "Sancho Panza" more recently, it is one more feather in his well-deserving hat, for he is no mechanical producer, as his labor of devotion and belief in his property are shown in every move.

Yes, "The Vagabond King" is nothing less than a triumph! It is the talk of Chicago and will be for many months, for now these people who love fine operettas will still be treading across the carpets of the Great Northern Theatre.

Rudolf Friml, who furnished the superb scores of "Rose Marie" and kindred musical successes, contributes another feast of melody in "THE VAGABOND KING". This talented composer is said to have written a score that outshines even his former notable compositions, which is most adequately interpreted by a chorus of over one hundred voices and a symphony orchestra of 30 musicians.

"The Vagabond King" is a musical adaptation by W. H. Post of Justin Huntley McCarthy's tremendous stage success, "If I Were King", in which E. H. Sothern appeared with success for several seasons. Brian Hooker, who made the adaptation of "Cyran" for Walter Hampden, is the author of the lyrics. The cast is headed by Dennis King as Francois Villon. He is a revelation! No other actor could sing the role so brilliantly; no other singer could approach King's exquisite acting of the part.

An interesting feature of this year's improvements by the Rock Island, will be the installation of new signal and interlocking devices between Blue Island and Joliet, permitting the use of each of the two tracks in this double-track territory for the operation of trains both east and west during the hours when the traffic is the heaviest. By thus using both tracks for East-bound trains in the morning, and the two tracks for West-bound trains in the evening, the movement of passengers and freight will be greatly expedited.

In addition to the above, the general program also embraces improvements in the telegraph and telephone system, fuel and water stations, shop machinery, etc.

PALOS PARK

Mr. Winslow Mahaffay who was born on a farm in Palos Township in the year 1847 celebrated his 80th birthday in the village of Palos Park at the home of his son Frank C. Mahaffay on Sunday Feb. 13th 1927.

Mr. Mahaffay has been a resident of Palos since birth and has always been instrumental in the upbuilding of the community and a staunch believer in the future of this vicinity and its development, a belief that is becoming more and more apparent each successive year.

There were present of the family seven children: Mrs. Jennie Clark from Allegan, Mich., Mrs. Ella Locke, of Orland, Jas. W., Frank, Walter Mahaffay, Mrs. Mable Lane, Mrs. Maud Traub, Mrs. Clark drove thru from Allegan, arriving during the afternoon, surprising the family as they did not know of her intention to do so as she had sent a congratulatory telegram during the morning. Seventeen of the nineteen grand children were also present.

During the evening the radio station of Sears Roebuck, "W L S" honored the gathering by announcing the birthday party and paying tribute by vocal selections.

The guests present were: Wm. Macaulay of Orland who worked for Mr. Mahaffay on his farm 48 years ago, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Pashley of Palos, Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Wirts of Blue Island and Mrs. Harriet Austin of Orland, a life-long friend of the family.

Dinner and supper were served to fifty guests.

Mr. Mahaffay lived on his farm in Palos Township until about 25 years ago when he came to Palos village. Mrs. Mahaffay passed away about five years later.

During the evening Mrs. Frank Mahaffay and daughters honored those present with very pleasing vocal selections. Altogether, it was a most enjoyable affair and one to be long remembered.

Mrs. Sarah Krupp celebrated her 81st birthday on Saturday Feb. 12 at her home in Palos Park. The affair took the form of a family reunion, her sons and daughters, grand children and great grand children being present. A very enjoyable day was spent.

Gym in Attic Provides Joy for Youth

(C) Celotechnic Institute, Chicago, 1926.

WHO is the most popular, the most envied boy in the neighborhood? The one who has a gymnasium all of his own fixed up in the attic. This is a place where he can bring home all the "regular fellows," play for hours on rainy days and put on acrobatic and athletic performances well worth the two pins admission price charged. Incidentally, the rest of the family can well take advantage of this opportunity to keep physically fit and hard the year round.

A couple of heavy gymnasium mats are all that are needed to start with. These will make first-class clowns and acrobats of pretty nearly all boys. To these may be added from time to time, as birthday and Christmas presents or out of the boy's own savings, such equipment as pulleys, Indian clubs, punching bag, and a combination of swinging rings, trapeze and swing made especially for the small home gym.

It is well to plan for from the start where each piece of equipment will logically have to go when the time comes to add it, allowing plenty of room to avoid swinging into dormers or bumping against the gables. Girders may be put up to bear the strain.

The next step is to seal the interior of the attic with insulating lumber from the tough, strong fibers of sugar cane, not just for the sake of appearance but to keep the gym cool in the summer and warm enough in the winter. The heat rising from the floors below will ordinarily furnish all that is necessary, as the temperature of the gymnasium should not be over sixty degrees to be healthful. The insulating lumber is nailed in large boards under the rafters, with side walls up to a height of three feet. The spaces so formed under the eaves may easily be lined with the same lumber and used for storing trunks and window screens.

If a rough flooring is already down, this should be covered with a layer of the insulating lumber and on top of this canvas sewed in strips stretched tightly across. This makes a splendid floor for this purpose, especially as the canvas has sound deadening properties which will tend to keep the noise from going downstairs.

Also, this floor layer of the insulating lumber, while it will tend to make the attic a little cooler because it will retard transmission from below, will conserve just that much more for the rooms that really need it. The fuel saving of the house insulated this way varies according to the conditions in each house but as high as 25 per cent is no uncommon saving.

Above all, the gymnasium should be "liberty hall," for the boys to do in as they like and they should be held responsible for taking care of it themselves. Two precautions will spare every one concerned a lot of expense and grief: put wire screening over each window on the inside and buy guards to put over the electric light bulbs.

(C) Celotechnic Institute, Chicago, 1926.

MOKENA

Last Saturday afternoon the will members of the M. E. S. S. met at the home of Evelyn Barnes. It being the ninth birthday of the hostess, a short session of the regular meeting was held, after which various pleasing games were played prizes being awarded to the most successful players. The home was prettily decorated in keeping with the Valentine season. A lovely luncheon was served at a table decorated in Valentines and two birthday cakes also were in great evidence. Virginia Mae Brown was eight years old also on that day, so honor was paid to both celebrants. A framed picture and vase was presented by the class president, Genevieve Pfeiffer, on behalf of the class to the hostess. Fourteen guests were present.

Mr. J. R. Butler is ill in his home. Friends and relatives gathered in the home of Henry Shevlin 1st Friday evening to help him celebrate his birthday.

In Memoriam

In memory of our Dear Father Nicholas Marti who died six years ago to-day Feb. 17.

Only those who have lost can tell The grief that is borne in silence Of our Dear Father we loved so well; No one knows the silent heart-ache Friends may think the wound is healed.

They little know the sorrow That lies within our hearts concealed.

Father dear we are so lonesome We miss your loving face You left us to remember No one on earth can take your place.

NICHOLAS MARTI FAMILY

Mrs. J. Baumgartner of Frankfort called on Mrs. W. L. Lowman Wednesday.

Rover, the big pet collie dog of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Deadmore, who has been the pet of the Misses Adeline and Ada Semmler since the Deadmores moved to Joliet, was struck and killed by a fast east bound Rock Island mail train at the school house crossing Friday afternoon. He was hurled over 30 feet in the air. Mr. Deadmore was in town that afternoon and buried his pet. Rover was a likable and intelligent dog and made many friends among the little tots as well as the older folks who all mourned his tragic death.

Mrs. E. Woods is critically ill at the Silver Cross hospital.

WHAT PRICE

HEALTH

VALUE of health may not be reckoned in dollars and cents. Two thousand years ago there was perhaps some excuse for the gastronome, but today there is none. The way to health lies in a balanced diet. Hippocrates, the father of medicine, figured along the same lines back 450 B. C. He expressed the belief that the science of medicine had its beginning in the efforts of men and women to find better and smoother diets.

Diet in the home today is becoming a matter of premier consideration. Women are taking cognizance of those important food elements known as vitamins. They have learned, also, the benefit to the human body of such minerals as iron, calcium and phosphorus.

This knowledge has resulted in the housewife planning her menus with an eye open to dietary values, which is the big reason why milk has assumed such a large place in the menu of the American family. Milk contains every structural element for body building. It is an almost perfect food. Despite the best refrigeration facilities, milk will keep sweet only a short time. Millions of American housewives have solved this big problem by using evaporated milk, which is simply fresh cow's milk sterilized in cans to achieve keeping qualities and with sixty per cent of the water removed.

Evaporated milk is not the same as condensed milk, although many persons confuse the two. The condensed product is a combination of milk and sugar cane in a two-fifth cane sugar and three-fifth milk proportion. Evaporated milk has nothing but water taken from it and nothing at all added. Sugar is the preservative used in manufacturing the condensed product, while heat only is the preservative for evaporated milk. For this reason the evaporated product may be used in any way in which market milk is used.

MARLEY

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Marley Community church will hold their February meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Knapp in Mokena, Tuesday Feb. 22nd—Washington's Birthday. ## Using Electricity on Illinois Farm Elevating Grain With Five-Horse-Power Chore Motor on Farm of F. W. Jordan, Near Champaign.

In co-operation with the electric light and power companies of Illinois, the University of Illinois is conducting experiments in the use of electricity in agriculture on ten farms located near the school. Practical, every-day farm work, including housekeeping, is being done by electricity. The cost of the power used is recorded and is compared with costs of work done by old-fashioned methods. It is believed that these experiments will show the way to a general use of electricity on Illinois farms in the near future. Mr. Jordan is one of the progressive farmers assisting in this practical research.
